About Peripheral Alliances

The transdisciplinary residency Peripheral Alliances is a place where the participants have the opportunity to meet, work, and stay. The former farm in Inning close to the Ammersee is available to Kunstverein München in order to host invited residents through September 2022. Distant, but not detached from the existing architecture of the Kunstverein, the residency offers a shift in perspective and opens up artistic dialog beyond the city. The concept draws on dynamic forms of production as well as togetherness and is interested in collaborative exhibition formats. Thus, democratic (self-)organization as part of an artistic practice is at the center of collective work within the format. The intersections of this collaborative network enable the exchange of emotional and material resources.

About the house and the living situation

The spacious site consists of a residential house with 6 bedrooms, various workshops (ceramics, wood, metal), work spaces, and several common rooms including a kitchen. Photos of the residency can be found here: www.kunstverein-muenchen.de/en/program/program-series/2021/peripheral-alliances. The house can be reached in about an hour by public transport from Munich's central station. The Ammersee can be reached in about 20 minutes by foot. The house is inhabited by several residents at any given time. It is up to these residents to organize maintain the house and to arrange living together.

Program

Over the duration of the residency in 2022, a discursive program with lectures, readings, screenings, and workshops will be offered. The residents' participation in this program is encouraged. The program will focus on issues of collaborative artistic production, gifting and friendship, co-operation, and commons. Another component of the residency is the realization of an own exhibition in the project space Lucky (@ykcullucky). During the residency in 2021, the artist-run project space Lucky was initiated, where the current residents curated and realized their own exhibitions every month.

Cooperation

The residency Peripheral Alliances is a cooperation between Kunstverein München and Euroboden. Euroboden is planning a new building on the site with around 150 open-use studios and communal areas. The modular building is designed by the architect Muck Petzet and will be completed in 2024.

Accessibility

Peripheral Alliances is not barrier-free. Nevertheless, we look forward to receiving applications from people with disabilities and will try to find solutions for participation within the scope of our possibilities.

COVID-19

Due to the unforeseeable developments with regard to the COVID-19 pandemic, deviations from normal operations up to the cancellation of the residency may occur.
